

Did not agree character: how to establish a relationship with the teacher

When the kid enters the first grade, for it begins a new stage in life. And at this stage there will be many new acquaintances and many new responsibilities. The first one meets the child at school is his teacher. And sometimes, the kid may hate the first teacher. Parents need to seriously address this issue, as it is quite serious.

First, the child may lose interest in learning. Second, baby and it's so hard to adapt to a new team and new him as a student. Therefore, if the child in conflict with the teacher, it can affect his psyche.

Before you choose a school and teacher for the child, you need to know as much detail as possible, what kind of person you entrust the most important — your child. After the teacher is an ordinary person, which can involve the child in the learning process and become for him an idol, and may turn away from school and psychologically suppress his personality. If possible, talk to former students of the teacher to which your child comes. If you hear that the teacher allowed himself incorrect attitude to their wards, for example, used physical force against the children or is not able to explain the material, it is better to refuse and find a more suitable teacher.

If you have a child trust relationship, you must first know what the behavior of teachers in the school. Define the line between dislike of the subject and dislike to the teacher that leads this subject. Carefully finding out the child as responds to events in school he hated the teacher and how it relates to your child, you can determine why the child is in conflict with it. It happens that the child, not accustomed to discipline, are unable to determine proper behavior in school. And then there are conflicts with teachers. It all depends on parenting. If you realize that it's not about the teacher, it is necessary to explain the bases of behavior. But sometimes the opposite situation, when the teacher really disliked the child. All teachers claim that they have no Pets, however, this is often not the case. If the child has no time on the subject, there may be hostility and relationship with the teacher will be ruined. In this case, to hear both sides and if the case, indeed, of failure, you might need to hire a tutor or to work with your child yourself.

As a rule, teachers are divided into two types: authoritarian, strict and more loyal. The first children dislike and fear, but if the teacher himself correctly put, it will be respected. Carrot and stick, that since ancient times the most reliable tool in education. Second children either adore or ridicule and not respect. The same method is applicable in this case. The teacher is required to take responsibility for students, adequate and intelligent teacher will meet parents in the desire to resolve the conflict. custom research paper writing service Well, if a grown man deliberately goes to the principle and oppresses the student, it does not characterize his good side, as a specialist. In any case, to solve the problem should be diplomatic, not injuring mentality of the child's inhibitions and lack of confidence or indulgence, which eventually will lead to hate school.